Design Philosophy

- Graphic design can be diluted to a definition that is more widely understood, connections. Design is based entirely on a system of connections. A good design is built from the ground up with connections in mind; from connecting ideas to thinking about how it will connect with an audience. The power of design is evident when a connection can be made universally with nothing lost in translation. People are dependent on the connections that graphic design creates.

An abstract graphic composed of several overlapping, thick, white-outlined geometric shapes, including rectangles and triangles, arranged in a dynamic, non-linear fashion.
